If you head east 1 click you can see some goof dressed up like Link from Zelda.

By going to the end of the street and looking back at headquarters you can tell that the car came by before and the workers probably then came up with the idea to re-do it and all be out there and since they work for google it was probably pretty easy to get accomplished.

@Luigi: Well, that is the Google Headquarters, where Streetview was made... So I'm pretty sure they knew that their own car was there.
